Singapore lifts data center moratorium - but sets conditions

Minister for Trade and Industry says the country will be "more selective" in future

January 12, 2022 By: Peter Judge O Comment

Thailand shall not create the barrier or "headwind"

Singapore appears to have lifted its moratorium on new data center projects, according to a statement by the Trade and Industry Minister this week - but new data centers will have to meet certain conditions.

Data centers contribute to Singapore's growth, but must be sustainable, said Minister Gan Kim Yong, in a written answer to Parliament on Tuesday, Jan 11. The country has paused new data center development since 2019, but this will now resume, though the government will impose measures to make them more efficient, he said.
